

FACILITATION HELP: THINK CRITICALLY

Do you speak Christianese? It's the language of a long-time Christian who has been around the church for a while. It's full of big words that are full of significance to those who've been around the church awhile, but completely foreign to students who are new to discipleship, Bible study, and the church. It is your job to not only ask the questions, but also to make sure students truly understand what the questions mean. Do students really understand what you are asking them? Remember to ask clarifying questions to ensure that the students are tracking with you.
